Amusements.

War to the knife—a tough goon.
Sausage Maker's Sign—love me, love my dog.
The last row of summer—the last row of winter.

Paradox—When is a man most down to the world? When he is hard up.
Light fantastic tow—A steam tug towing a sailboat.

Infant Black—Louis Napoleon's character—Punch.

He that cannot forgive others, breaks the bridge over which he must pass himself.

Why was Adam the best runner that ever lived? Because he was the first in the human race.

Love in a cottage is all very well—when you own the cottage, and have money at interest.

"Caught in her own net," as the man said when he saw one of the fair sex caught in her criminality.

The woman out West, who recently had twins, has named the oldest boy Robert Schuyler—from his connection with the actress of that name.

A justice in Lafayette, Ind., married a young couple a short time since, and dated the marriage contract back a few weeks, "to cover an impending accident," as he called it.

A man observes that the reason ladies make the best theatrical managers is, probably, because a woman is obliged to be as much more particular than a man in choosing the company he keeps.

Leather Stockings wants to know how it happened that La. Mountain, the celebrated ballplayer, "was four days in the Canadian wilderness without food," when he had a Haddock with him.

An old bachelor who had procured a marriage license for a friend, while glancing over it, was heard to exclaim thus:

"Can't do it—would like to, but won't—want a wife—would like to have a wife—but can't do it—money is scarce—provisions are high—won't consent to give anyone authority to spend money for me—can't do it!"

A man said to another, "Which is the heaviest, a quart of rum or a quart of water?"

"Rum, most assuredly, for I saw a man who weighed two hundred pounds, staggering under a quart of rum, when he would have carried a gallon of water with ease."

Something about Adam's Fall—A Temperance Anecdote.

A favorite temperance lecturer "dove south," used to relate the following anecdote to illustrate the influence of a bad example to the formation of habits, ruinous in their effect.

Adam and Mary, his wife, who lived in one of the old States, were very good members of the church, good sort of folks in every way, quiet, industrious and thrifty in the world, and Mary thought a great deal of the minister, and the minister thought a good deal of a glass of good toddy.

Whenever the minister called to make Mary a visit, which was pretty often, the continued to have a glass of toddy made, and the minister never refused to imbibe. After a while Adam got to following the example of the minister to such an extent, that he became a drunkard—drank up everything he had and all he could get. Mary and Adam became very poor in consequence of his following the minister's example so closely, but the good minister continued his visits, and poor Mary continued still to give him the glass of toddy. One day he called in and told Mary that he was going away for a week—should return on Friday—and handed her a book containing the catechism, and told her when he returned he should expect her to be able to answer the questions. Mary said, "yes," and laid away the book carefully. But Mary, like a good many other church-members, thought no more of her book until the very Friday the good minister was to return. "What shall I do?" said she; the minister is to be here to-day, and I haven't looked in the book he gave me. How can I answer the questions?

"I can tell you," said Adam, "give me a quiver and let me go over to Smith's and get some good rum, and you can answer his questions with a glass of toddy."

Mary took the advice, gave Adam a quiver and a jug, and off he started. After getting his bottle filled, and on his way back, Adam concluded to taste the rum. One taste followed the other, until he stumbled over a pile of rocks, and broke the jug and lost all the rum. But Adam managed to stagger home.

Adam was so into the house, Mary inquired very anxiously for the bottle and rum. "Where is the bottle and rum, Adam?"

"Poor Adam managed to stagger out, that he stumbled over a pile of rocks, broke the bottle and lost the rum."

"Mary was in a fix—Adam drunk—the minister coming—the rum gone—and the questions unanswered!" But here comes the minister! "It won't do for the rum of God to see Adam drunk," so he, for the want of a better place to hide, sent him under the bed. By the time he was fairly under, to cause the minister. After sitting a few moments, he asked Mary if she thought she could answer the question, "How did Adam fall?"

Mary turned her head first one way and then the other; finally she stammered out, "He fell over a pile of rocks!"

"It was now the minister's turn to look black; but he ventured another question, 'Where did the bottle and rum go?'"

Mary looked at the minister, then at the bed, but finally she said out with it, "Under the bed sir! There Adam you may come out; he knows all about it!"

The good minister retired—not even waiting for his glass of toddy.

Heine Heine—An Advertiser in a 24-hour paper, offers to be one of a hundred gentlemen to give $25, each for the heads of a hundred gentlemen named, including Adams, Wilson, Sumner, Hor. Greeley, Dr. Chas. H. Davis, Henry Ward Beecher, &c. He also offers to be one of a hundred to pay $50,000 for the head of William H. Edwards. Virginia is said to need a lot of heads as good as these, but they are not to be had at such low prices, while they are in bulk at the North—Baltimore Herald.

The Hon. Horace Greeley, Proprietor and Editor of the New York Tribune, has been the first in the country to give a "Great Hunt" on Wednesday evening, Jan. 10, at the Grand Central Hotel.

Mr. Greeley's friends attended in large numbers, and the game was fairly killed and the reputation of the Tribune established.
